Murphy Appeals for Workers Vote

Says He Is the Only Candidate to Fight Militantly for Mine Workers; Has Nothing to Take Back
From Campaign Addresses of 5 Years Ago

Harvey Murphy, Labor-Communist candidate, shot a vigorous broadside at all other candidates in Rocky Mountain constituency at an open-air meeting in Coleman on Saturday evening, in his campaign to represent the workers of the Crow's Nest Pass and Cammore.

He scored Donald J. MacNeil, Liberal candidate, as the candidate of the coal operators; E. A. Duke, the Social Credit candidate, as the hand-picked candidate of "Pooh-Bah" Aberhart, and G. E. Cruickshank, the Independent candidate, as the cheese merchant of Hillcrest who had never raised his voice except to protest in the legislature against the town council of Blairmore declaring a holiday in honor of Tim Buck. All were given equal attention in his criticism belittling their fitness to represent a Labor constituency, and he declared he was the only one who from experience knew the problems of the working man.

The meeting opened with Rock Sudworth as chairman introducing O. Olson, of Blairmore. Mr. Olson stated he had worked in Coleman years ago when the United Mine Workers of Canada was functioning. Bill John L. Lewis said 'em out. Then was formed the Mine Workers' Union of Canada, to which he was proud to belong, and would stay with it as long as he had breath in his body. He would support Murphy against the field, as he would be the first real "Red" representative to be elected in this constituency if Labor is true to itself. As for Cruickshank, he had not a word to say for the workers or his own class. He knew nothing of MacNeil, but, "anyhow, he doesn't represent our class."

There was nothing in Social Credit to give them anything, and for the C.P.R. they wouldn't give them anything, but would feel in their shirts to see if they were sweating, and if not, they could get out.

He cited Aberhart on the 'just price, particularly on wheat and wages, and concluded by appealing to Labor to support Murphy, for, he concluded, though we do not know whether you a month, we'll give you the whole world if you'll take it."

Enoch Williams, the second speaker, emphasized the necessity of Labor representation in Edmonton. Thirty years ago he was in Coleman when Charlie O'Brien was the successful Socialist candidate, and the only other true Labor representative they had in this district was Christopher, who did a lot towards bringing in social legislation for the mine workers. Referring to Mr. Cruickshank, Conservatives and Liberals had supported him in 1930, and what was the result? Administration of the Compensation Act during the past five years was crime to the people of Canada, with its $3.50 to $7.50 a month for disabled men. This was one of the evils of having no Labor representation. Smeaton, Chris Pattinson, Fred White, what had any of them done to present claims to the Compensation Board. On one occasion a delegation had been promised by Pattinson, the member for Edson, that he would introduce their claims and the next morning he found it very convenient to leave for his home in Edson.

The old line Labor men deserted them in time of need, with the result that in the lignite areas men were living in ten hours a day and the miners in the Crow's Nest Pass did not have to submit to such deplorable conditions because of the efforts of their leaders. He branded the old Labor members as fakirs. Labor must be represented not by a merchant or an office man or a teacher, but by a laboring man. Murphy, he stated, started to work when a young fellow, and through organizing ability had got away from his tools. He was the best man they could find in the constituency and knew how to fight the bosses. He would do just as well in Edmonton."

Speaking of the problem of the young man, conditions would not improve from now on. People must realize this is a normal time and there could not be improvement under the present system. Last winter in touring the Dominion he had seen young men everywhere without a chance to work, and felt the hopelessness of their plight. Social Credit would not provide a way out—it seemed that the young men would have to find a way out of the difficulties created by the older men.

Murphy had never sunk his job, and had fought the boss in a manly way. He believed the workers had made a good selection in him as candidate. He referred to his (Williams) visit last year to Soviet Russia as a delegate from this district and stated the workers there were far ahead in every way than those of Canada. He predicted that with a true Labor government that inside of a year the workers would come into their own under a Soviet system based on no-exploitation and non-exploitation. This is the reform the Workers' Party would bring about. Social Credit was just a reform of the capitalist party. The people must take over the means of production, by overthrowing the capitalist system and replacing it by the Socialist system.

H. Sherwood, of Cammore, was the third speaker, who stated he was last in Coleman during the time of the O.B.U. activities, when he couldn't get a job, so he didn't think he was wanted. He came to the Pass meetings to deal particularly with Social Credit and its fallacies. Up at Cammore he heard the Pass was all Social Credit, but found about one in a hundred wearing a button. Since coming here he heard Cammore was solid for Social Credit, but there were only 40 there, who were the worst element of their union.

Dealing particularly with Mr. Luke, he was already an old man of 65 years of age, a teacher being paid $1600 as principal of the school. He had known him for 19 years, and if one didn't get to know a man pretty well in that time, he must be asleep. Duke, under the labor trustees, had been given his job, yet he had never lifted a finger to help him. They were not going to fire him because of his political activities, for he would never be elected. The "Reds" will not fire him just because he believes in Social Credit. He had failed to contribute one cent towards strike funds, and when he (Sherwood) had asked him to sign a petition to abolish Section 98 and to release Tim Buck, he refused point blank. "Just imagine, a so-called saviour of the people who was afraid to debate Social Credit. Aberhart didn't want a miner for a candidate, oh, no! The only way the workers will get their desires is by militant action. Under Social Credit they will get nothing. Duke had no record of having helped trade unionism. Anyone living off the workers had a right to help them in their standard of living. He had refused to debate. Anyone with a fair policy need have no fear of debating with Murphy. "Don't be fooled by promises," he concluded, "but support Murphy, who will organize the working classes."

Murphy Speaks
In opening his address, Murphy stated that five years ago he had campaigned for Rock Sudworth as the Communist candidate. If the people would recall all the speakers of that campaign, he was the one who had the least to take back. His statements of that time had been proved to the hilt by a steady worsening of conditions. Only where there had been militancy had there been improvement. Five years ago there were no slave camps, and unemployment was one-third of that existing today. Five years of experience showed there is only one party that brings forward a program that meets the needs of the workers.

Look at R. B. Bennett; he had dinner with the King, which was quite all right, as he was an honorable man and the King wouldn't dine with him unless he was; but he had promised to bring back prosperity, which even more than Aberhart promises—

Cruickshank Says Liberals Supporting Him as Independent

Has No Intention of Accepting Stevens Candidature—Not Offered Him, and No Correspondence With Campaign Committee

George E. Cruickshank, Independent candidate, in giving instructions for advertising his election appeal in The Journal, states he has been assured of support of Liberals as well as Conservatives in the constituency, as a result of his recent tour of the district.

He also sets at rest rumors to the effect that he had been asked to accept nomination as a Stevens candidate. He states: "I have no intention of accepting the nomination as a Stevens candidate; but some has not been offered to me. Nor have I had any correspondence with the provincial managers of the Stevens campaign."

His meetings for the Pass towns have been arranged, the Coleman meeting being on Friday, August 16, in the Community hall at 8 p.m. See special announcement re speakers in display advt. Posters are also displayed giving full particulars.

NOTICE

The Journal has taken particular care to give each political party a fair report on meetings held in Coleman. In this way it endeavors to place before the readers each candidate's claim for support in the provincial campaign. Its own comment and political opinion is openly stated in its editorial columns. Reports of Mr. Cruickshank's and Mr. Duke's meetings will be fully covered.

E. A. DUKE ANNOUNCES PASS MEETINGS

Mr. E. A. Duke, Social Credit candidate, spent several days in the Pass towns conferring with local committees, and has arranged his list of meetings, of which notice appears in this issue, as follows: Frank, August 12; Coleman, August 13; Blairmore, August 14; Bellevue, August 15; Hillcrest, August 16.

He will give the public the opportunity of meeting and hearing Mr. Duke on his first appearance in the Crow's Nest Pass. All meetings at 8 p.m.

Free Press Predicts Liberal Victory in Alberta

The Manitoba Free Press, of Winnipeg, summing up the political situation in Alberta, predicts a Liberal victory, for the following reason:

"The political effect of the Aberhart movement has been to split the U.F.A. support and improve the chances of the other parties."

Its summary of probable election returns is Liberals 41, Aberhartists 9, U.F.A. 7, Conservatives 3, Labor 2, Independent 1.

It would be interesting to paste this in your hat and see how it tallies after August 22.

MIS-SPELT WORD CONTEST CONTINUES TO CREATE INTEREST

Bernard McDonald Turns in Correct Answer and Is Awarded Year's Subscription

The intentional error in the last issue was the word "Believed" in Cole's theatre advertisement on front page. It was wrongly spelt "Believed". It was in the picture entitled "I Believed in You."

Other contestants picked out the word "Tomatoe" in Ledieu's ad. It should not have the letter "e" at the end, the correct spelling being "Tomato". Those who picked this word were Mrs. Ankil, Violet Knowles, Mrs. Fred Brown, Herbert McMullen, Oliver Salvador, Mrs. F. J. Weir.

We would urge them to keep on trying, for persistency brings reward, and seek for the intentional error or mis-spelt word in this week's advertisements. "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again!"

LIBERAL RALLY IN BLAIRMORE

A mass meeting will be held in the Columbus Hall, Blairmore, on Friday, August 9, at 8 p.m., in the interests of Donald J. MacNeil, Liberal candidate, at which speakers will be A. Macleod Sinclair, K.C., and Mr. MacNeil. All who have not yet heard Mr. MacNeil are urged to attend. Mr. Macleod Sinclair, well-known barrister of Calgary, will deliver an interesting address on the issues of the provincial campaign in support of Mr. MacNeil.

Mr. MacNeil has been holding meetings this week at Banff, Cammore, Exshaw and other places on the north line, assisted by Mr. J. E. Gillis, of Blairmore, and prominent Liberal speakers from Calgary. He reports very favorably on the reception accorded him in his campaign.

A Wonderful Homing Pigeon

Battered and Exhausted, Chas. Makin's Bird Tumbles Into Loft on Completion of Long Flight

Released at Peace River at 5 a.m. on July 27, with other birds from homing clubs of the Pass towns, Charles Makin's two-year-old bird was clocked in at Coleman at 9 a.m. the following morning, having rested during the night and continued its flight as soon as dawn broke.

During the time the flight was in progress the area through which the birds were flying was visited by hail and thunder storms, which caused many of the birds to become lost. Makin's bird, the champion, was so battered and exhausted that it just fell into the home loft, and at first Mr. Makin thought it was suffering from gunshot wounds, it was in such a pitiable condition. 94 birds competed, and two Bellevue birds were among the early arrivals.

It is interesting to note that this champion bird is out of the strain brought out from Scotland in 1930 by John Anderson, when the homing club was organized. Mr. Anderson, an authority on homing pigeons, was in charge of lofts in England during the war, when carrier pigeons were used between England and France. He is also a veteran of the famous Imperial regiment, the Scots Guards. He is naturally proud of the record of the original stock he brought out, which formed the foundation flying stock of the Coleman Homing Society. Birds from this strain have been prize winners in the five years of the society's flights. It is known as the Barker strain, and states that the best strain he has ever seen. Canada cannot beat this strain for endurance and speed.

HOW TO MAKE ICED TEA

Infuse six heaping teaspoons of Solids Black Tea in a pint of fresh boiling water. After six minutes of steeping, strain the tea into a glass. Add 1 1/2 cups of granulated sugar and the juice of 2 lemons. Stir well until sugar is dissolved; fill container with cold water. Do not allow tea to cool before adding the cold water, otherwise liquid will become cloudy. Serve with chopped ice.

"ICED TEA"

Whither?

Like many other Canadian citizens the writer listened to Hon. Macdonnell King's first radio broadcast a few nights ago. Just as he has listened to the radio addresses of Premier Bennett and other political leaders in which their respective party programmes and public issues of the day were discussed. In his address Mr. King gave emphasis to a word—Whither. He, of course, applied it to the political trends of the day and asked the Canadian electorate to give serious thought to "whither" the various policies now being urged upon them for acceptance were leading.

It is not the intention of the writer to follow Mr. King in giving to this word a political application. Party politics are eschewed as subjects for discussion in this column. But as we listened to Mr. King and his use of this word, the thought was forced upon us: Do we as individuals ask ourselves, as we should, whither we are headed in many of the undertakings upon which we embark? Or do we lightly engage in them without sufficient consideration, and without any very clear idea fixed in our minds as to what we hope to achieve?

A sailor as he leaves his home port knows whither he is bound. He is headed for a definite port and he equips himself with chart and compass to guide him to such port by the most direct route. He knows why he is headed to such particular port. An explorer does not lightly enter into the trackless forest or high impassable jungle without knowing whither he is bound, and the mining prospector likewise knows whither he is bound and the objective he hopes to achieve.

But how many of us as we pursued our way through public school, and possibly through high school and even college and university had a definitely defined goal upon which we used our ambition and determination to reach? Did we, as we devoted years to study, know whither we were bound, or did we proceed unthinkingly with our school studies with no very fixed idea in mind as to the vocation in life we proposed to follow?

And as we possibly just drifted into some kind of a job, or were apparently forced into some position or occupation seemingly by environment or force of circumstances, did we even then ask ourselves, whither am I going? Is this the kind of work for which I am best fitted? Or am I just allowing myself to drift without any particular effort on my part to direct my life into proper channels? In a word, did we take the trouble to provide ourselves with a chart and compass to guide us to our true destination?

Furthermore, having found our lot cast in a particular field of endeavor, and possibly feeling fairly content therein, did we even then query ourselves—whither? That is, did we merely accept our work as a means of livelihood? Or did we, as we now, regard our work as something more, something finer, than a means of sustenance? Whither are we headed? To render real service to mankind and to our country, to make the world a better and happier place because we are in it, or are we simply content to walk the treadmill of life as we find it?

As citizens do we ever take time to pause and consider whither the community in which we are situated, whither our energies are being used, whither our schools and colleges are educating our children? What are the moral trends of the times? Are we in the direction of developing stronger characters than those of bygone generations, or is the reverse true? Is our own little community growing better, or worse; is it being beautified or is it retrograding?

Nothing in Nature stands still. If it has life it is moving, either forward or backward. Nature abhors a vacuum. Mankind is the chief of all the works of Nature, and he must progress or slip backward. Each individual, if he or she is wise, will stop and ask—whither am I going? The person tempted to a dishonest or criminal act should pause and consider, whither? What is the end of the road upon which I propose to travel?

And what is true of the individual, is true of the nation. All nations and all peoples may well ask themselves at this time of predictions of war, or warlike preparations in all parts of the world, of uncompromising attitudes of nations in international conferences, whither are we drifting? What will be the outcome, end, of another war? The Great War was a source of loss to the whole world, to the victors as well as to the vanquished, and to those who remained neutral. Each and all suffered. It is not time we stopped and gave consideration, the most serious consideration of our lives, to that old English word—whither?

Let the reader apply this word to his own activities, his life activities, his next decision. Try and probe the future a bit, seek to visualize the outcome of any move you are about to make. Do not go blindly and thoughtlessly ahead. Ask yourself in all seriousness—whither?

Relic Of Riel Rebellion

Old Ox-Yoke Presented To Museum In Regina

On exhibition is an ox-yoke made in 1882 by the late George Cross of Inglethorpe, Sask., and later used in the Riel rebellion in 1885.

It is made from oak and some idea of its durability was learned when it was found that for over 40 years it has lain outside in all kinds of weather and is yet in a good state of preservation. It is being presented by Mrs. Cross to the museum at Regina as a souvenir of early days in Saskatchewan.

The stump of a black walnut tree near Smithfield, Va., sold for $3,800. Black walnut once grew plentifully in the U.S.A. but now is America's most valuable wood, the butt of the trunk being the most precious part.

The First Photograph

Print Just Found Was Taken By Inventor 100 Years Ago

It is just a hundred years ago that W. H. Fox Talbot, the inventor of photography, took his first picture, according to an English paper, which reports that that precious print has been found by his granddaughter, Miss M. T. Talbot, and is to be shown to the Royal Photographic Society when they visit Lacock Abbey, the Talbot home since the days of Henry VIII. Miss Talbot spent six hours a day for three months sorting shoals of papers and documents left by her grandfather.

The sun is about 400 times broader than the moon and also about 400 times farther away, so that the perspective of distance makes it look about the same size.

Slow-Motion Camera

Photographs Lightning

Same Electricity In Bolt As In Ordinary Light Bulb

Slow motion cameras have been used by science editors of The Country Home, New York, to measure thunderbolts and estimate just how much electricity is released in a flash of lightning.

Considering all the noise a thunderstorm can make, it is a little disconcerting to discover that the average thundercloud has a store of only just about as much electricity as flows through an ordinary electric light bulb in a minute. It generates this much electricity in five minutes, maintains it at this value for a longer or shorter period, and then lets it fly as a lightning flash at a pressure of about five billion volts, enough to blow a man down, or a horse, or even a small house. The pressure makes the discharge both spectacular and dangerous, and the thundercloud machine is continuously generating electricity at this pressure, a single cloud often developing three million kilowatts of power.

Photographs indicate that when a cloud is ready to hurl a thunderbolt it first oozes out a tiny tongue of flame. This "stretches" earthward about 50 yards from the cloud. It pauses and then wades out to 10,000th of a second. It then reappears and stretches another 50 yards. This process continues until the ground is reached. Branch tongues often spring out from it. The instant the leading tongue lashes the earth, the main part of the stroke begins. A brilliant flame sweeps upward from the ground toward the cloud, refracting the path literally blazed by the leader. This second stroke is much quicker lasting but 50 millionths of a second.

Toast King In Silence

Irish Freemasons Find It Best Way To Avoid Trouble

Irish Freemasons have adopted the suggestion of Patrick Rutledge, minister of justice, that "God Save the King" should not be sung at future dinners.

During a dinner of the Cork lodge a band of men rushed into the lodge, overturned the tables and fired revolver shots, using blank cartridges. It was believed that this outrage was committed because the guests exhibited too much fervor in singing "God Save the King."

Following this episode, Rutledge offered to provide protection for Masonic lodges at the occasion of annual dinners but he was assured this was not considered necessary. He then suggested that "God Save the King" could be omitted in future.

The suggestion was adopted but Masons will continue to toast His Majesty. The toast will be in silence, however, so that extremists could scarcely find grounds for breaches of the peace on its account.

A New Burglar Trap

Calgary Man Has Invented Gadget To Protect Banks

A burglar trap designed for use in banks has been invented by Adolf Johnson, of Calgary.

In his home he has built a working model of his invention. When a small button is stepped on, steel plates slip quickly into place over windows and revolving door sets blocking escape robbers.

Johnson patented the contrivance in 1922 and has been working on it ever since with a view to adding new features. Among other inventions he has developed are semaphore signals for street intersections, a parachute plane without either landing gear or wings and a number of automatic gates.

Ban Was Strict

The word "tabu" is an Hawaiian contribution to the list of American folk words, says a bulletin from the Pan-Pacific Press Bureau. Ancient Polynesians had many tabus, among which were those forbidding women to eat in the presence of men, or in the same house, or even to cook their food under the same roof.

Tiny Electric Motor

The world's smallest electric motor weighs just 13 grams—and can be balanced on one finger-tip. It was built by a 15-year-old student in technical school at Moscow. Now he's working on a saw to fit it, which will cut up matches.

Oaks are more likely to be struck by lightning than any other tree, declares a London expert, who has reported that since 1932 not a birch, beech, holly or horse chestnut in England has been struck. 2110

Touring Continent In Plane

Editor And Engineer See North America From Clouds

Blazing a trail from the west to the east coast of Canada, in the course of their tour of the north American continent, Albert F. Reck, news editor of the Salt Lake City Desert News, and Mahlon B. Kemmerer, graduate mining engineer of Princeton University, brought their big Fairchild 71 type monoplane to rest at the Halifax airport recently. Although referring to themselves as "amateur fliers" the pair have experienced all the thrills of the toughest of the northland's bad weather pilots and have come through it with a whole skin and in excellent spirits.

Bucking bad weather almost since their takeoff at Salt Lake City, the pair pushed on whenever the breaks presented themselves and when they brought their ship to earth at Halifax port had left 4,600 miles of the estimated 11,000 mile continent girdling trip behind them. A faulty welding job on the landing gear of the Waco cabin ship in which they started their tour was the first handicap hurled by the fliers. At Pendleton, Ore., the accident happened and, fearing that repairs would necessitate too long a stay, they secured the big Fairchild, which so far has proved itself the ideal craft for the job, they state.

The big monoplane, which is the same type as that flown from the Eastern Passage station of the R.C.A.F., has been christened by her owner the Gray Ghost, apparently from the gray dove that colors her fuselage and wings. The ship, the pilots say, had a history of her own before falling into their possession. She is equipped with a Pratt and Whitney Wasp motor and has a fuel capacity of 2,000 pounds and cruises at 110 miles per hour.

Had Remarkable Career

Woman Who Sculptures Horses Has Never Taken Lessons

A remarkable exhibition of sculptured horses was shown recently at London's House in London. There, hundreds of them in plaster, each about a foot high, expressed every possible attitude of the horse in action. They were the work of Madame Vera Lombardi, sister of Captain Esme Arkwright and wife of an Italian cavalry officer.

An interviewer found her covered with plaster against her horses. They had come from Rome, and she had forgotten to mark the horses' names. She mended legs while she talked, and these are some of the surprising facts about her:

Until a year or so ago she had never dreamed of being an artist. She was a business woman and still spends eight hours a day in an office. She has never had an art lesson in her life, and knows nothing about anatomy. Her studio is her bed, where she works until she falls asleep.

Mme. Lombardi was "discovered" 18 months ago by the great Spanish painter, Zuloaga. She has had a remarkable career. She was named at hospitals throughout the war, being in charge of the operating room for two years.

After the war she became manager for Chanel, the famous Paris dress-maker, and has taken Chanel collections all over the world. She started a sports department, which built up Chanel's workrooms from 200 hands to 2,400.

Record Played Wedding Peal

Church Bells Were Too Mournful In Opinion Of Groom

The church bells at Woodley, near Reading, England, are too mournful for a wedding, a resident decided having listened to them for some time. And so, when it came his turn to be married, he decided not to have them rung. But what is a wedding without bells? To make up for the silent church peals he had a gramophone record of a joyous wedding peal played as he and his bride left the church. And all went merrily as a wedding bell—in canned music style.

China's Ungovernable River Noted For Its Disastrous Floods

If the Hwang Ho, the Great Yellow River, the most northerly of China's mighty waterways, is seeking to return to the bed it deserted eighty years ago, it is doing no more than live up to its reputation as a sinister stream. It is "China's Sorrow." The "Ungovernable," "The Scourge of the Sons of Han." The course it deserted has been built up into a thickly populated agricultural region; if the river re-establishes itself therein, the people will lose everything.

Too swift and too shallow to be of capital importance to commerce, it is notable mainly for its disastrous floods. Farmers cultivating the plain through which it flows have to dig to confine the river within dykes; in the flood season a channel too narrow is overflowed. The silt once deposited over a wide area by the river is now deposited on the river bed so that at low water the surface of the stream is fifteen feet above that of the plain and thirty feet at normal high water. It has been proposed to straighten the river bed and thus get the benefit of the course. But the Hwang Ho may persist in having its own way in the future as it has in the past—New York Sun.

Crowds Worthwhile Sign

Crowds of superstitious persons have each night been worshipping before a mysterious red glow in the window of a school in the French concession at Shanghai. They believed it to be the appearance of a certain Chinese deity. Then the red glow was found to be merely the reflections of an illuminated sign over a theatre across the street.

For Economy's Sake

Breakfast in bed may be only for wealthy Occidentals, but in Japan it is an economy measure, reports Miss Frances B. Clapp, Congregational missionary, just back from Kyoto, Japan. Fuel shortages makes it cost about 50 cents to build a fire, so many Japanese eat breakfast in bed to keep warm, said Miss Clapp.

Antonio Stradivari, famous violin maker, died almost 200 years ago, but the quality of the varnish used on his violins has never been equalled.

Living Up To Reputation

China's Ungovernable River Noted For Its Disastrous Floods

If the Hwang Ho, the Great Yellow River, the most northerly of China's mighty waterways, is seeking to return to the bed it deserted eighty years ago, it is doing no more than live up to its reputation as a sinister stream. It is "China's Sorrow." The "Ungovernable," "The Scourge of the Sons of Han." The course it deserted has been built up into a thickly populated agricultural region; if the river re-establishes itself therein, the people will lose everything.

Too swift and too shallow to be of capital importance to commerce, it is notable mainly for its disastrous floods. Farmers cultivating the plain through which it flows have to dig to confine the river within dykes; in the flood season a channel too narrow is overflowed. The silt once deposited over a wide area by the river is now deposited on the river bed so that at low water the surface of the stream is fifteen feet above that of the plain and thirty feet at normal high water. It has been proposed to straighten the river bed and thus get the benefit of the course. But the Hwang Ho may persist in having its own way in the future as it has in the past—New York Sun.

Becomes Separate Grade

Recompense For Garnet Wheat Holders If Loss Results

Effective Aug. 1, Garnet wheat will be marketed as a separate grade. E. B. Ramsay, chairman of the board of grain commissioners, announced. Its price, he said, will be determined by ordinary market conditions.

The wheat will be marketed through existing channels, stated Mr. Ramsay. He looked upon the change as a routine matter, which should produce no undue difficulties.

At the last session of parliament, $1,500,000 was voted to recompense Garnet wheat holders while the new method of marketing was being evolved, if any loss resulted. Previously, Garnet wheat had been graded with No. 2 Northern.

The new grade will be separated into two varieties, No. 1 Garnet and No. 2 Garnet. Any Garnet wheat not good enough to be graded No. 2, will be put into No. 3 Northern or lower grades. The price of the new grade will be fixed in the open market, similar to the present method in force in other grades.

Piron, the French author, was arrested and arraigned by a belittling magistrate. "You're a poet, eh?" the judge sneered. "I have a brother who is a poet."

"Then our families are even," Piron retorted, "for I have a brother who is a fool."

Three Steamers Now Churchill-Bound Are Forerunners Of Fleet

Churchill.—Three steamers were Churchill-bound, the advance guard of a fleet of 20 expected to trade out of Manitoba's northern seaport during the 1935 season. Port officials predicted a 160 per cent. increase over traffic in 1933 when 10 vessels docked to load 2,736,000 bushels.

The S.S. Nascope, romance ship of the Arctic, on her annual voyage to northern point, was expected to reach here August 11. The freighter Leopold and Westworth were scheduled to enter Hudson Strait August 10, official date set by insurance companies for opening of navigation.

Reports from the S.S. McLean and Ocean Eagle, engaged in government patrol, indicated a scarcity of shifting ice which raked the northern waters last year and held the Nascope a prisoner for more than a week.

Increased incoming commerce this season was expected to establish this port as a distributing point for the west.

Shipments booked to date, port authorities stated, exceeded the total amount handled during 1934. The Westworth and Leopold carried package cargo from European ports and were chartered for grain east-bound.

Hydro For Gold Fields

Proposed Plan For Athabasca Lake Area Is Feasible

Regina.—Hydro-electric power development in the Lake Athabasca mining area to supply energy for mining operations will likely be undertaken in the near future.

Already several applications have been received by the department of natural resources for hydro-electric sites in the district.

These come from large electric corporations, but names have not been revealed by government officials. There are three outstanding sites in the district, all within a radius of the mining field sufficient to make it economically possible to supply power.

These sites are estimated to be capable of supplying up to 35,000 or 40,000 horsepower. They are located on the Old Man river, the Tazin river and the Grease river. These sites are roughly 30, 40 and 80 miles distant from Beaver Lodge lake, respectively.

Bear Low Interest Rate

All Records Broken When Recent Loan Was Floated

Ottawa.—Breaking all records for low interest rates, a $30,000,000 issue of Dominion Canada treasury bills has just been sold. It was announced. At the price received the average yield per annum on the bills is 1.2337 per cent. The previous low sold was an issue of $20,000,000 sold to yield 1.38 per cent. per annum.

The bills are due November 1 and the discount price of the accepted bids was 98.69. Proceeds will be used to retire in part an issue of $50,000,000 in bills taken up by the chartered banks some months ago at a yield of 2½ per cent. per annum.

Royalty Tied Holiday Portsmouth.—King George and Queen Mary, accompanied by the Duke and Duchess of York, boarded the royal yacht Victoria and Albert and sailed for a two weeks' cruise which will include attendance at the annual Cowes regatta.

Floods Have Caused Scene Of Desolation In Slave Lake Area

Slave Lake, Alta.—Rampaging Lesser Slave Lake, which for two and one half days has pounded five-foot waves into this flood-stricken town, had left a scene of desolation with residents living in tents on higher ground, small buildings washed away, and others undermined, until they threaten to crumble.

Lashed by an insidious gale, the waves battered away small buildings, including the post office, and residents are fearful that a new wind will complete nature's onslaught. The lake is already at high level and even in calm weather travel through the town is done by boat. Damage

To Guard British Legation

Sikhs From India May Be Sent Into Ethiopia

London.—Preparations are being made to send detachments of Sikhs from India to Ethiopia as reports from the British legation in Addis Ababa indicate they will be necessary to protect the legation building. It was learned here. Britain is also ready to evacuate British missionaries and their families now in Ethiopia. All the missionaries have been instructed to keep in close touch with the British legation.

It was revealed in the House of Commons that an embargo has been placed on the export to Ethiopia of raw materials which could be used for the manufacture of munitions. Great Britain has granted Italy 35 permits to send planes over British territory in East Africa, the house was told. Twenty of these were for British Somaliland, and the others for the Sudan.

To Help Veterans

Organization To Seek Work Will Be Set Up

London, Ont.—A national organization, serving voluntarily, and backed by a strong veterans' organization, will be set up in the near future to deal with unemployment among veterans, declared Brig-General Ross, Dominion president of the Canadian Legion, at the annual banquet of the provincial command of the legion at the close of the first day of the three-day convention here.

Set-up for giving assistance to unemployed veterans is embodied in what is considered one of the most difficult problems confronting the Canadian Legion, he said. Gen. Ross explained that the commission to be formed would consist of three men, serving voluntarily, who would build up a national organization with boards in all towns and districts which would find work for veterans.

Japan's Aerial Defence

Taxation For Commercial Program Is Heavy

Tokio.—Japan is going ahead with a big plan for the encouragement of civil aviation side by side with the completion of her five-year plan of aerial defence.

Initial expenditure on the plan for civil aviation will total the equivalent of $60,000,000, and thereafter the Ministry of Communications will spend about $1,000,000 a year in promoting aviation.

An elaborate program to link Japanese domestic air lines with the world's airways has already been worked out.

Most of the money spent on the five-year air defence program will be spent in building new airframes, purchasing new equipment, and strengthening air defence generally.

Citizens See Falling Star

Toronto.—A huge falling star which thrilled Toronto citizens was described as shooting like a rocket out of the northwest, leaving a trail of yellow light which remained in the heavens for about 10 minutes. Officials at the Dunlop observatory thought the star might have been a meteor and, as if brilliant as reported, might have fallen to the earth.

Straits Clear Of Ice

Port Of Churchill Ready For Opening Of Navigation

Ottawa.—Eight days before marine insurance rates become effective on the Hudson Bay route to Churchill the government ice-breaker N.E. McLean reported the straits were clear of ice.

The McLean arrived at the eastern entrance to Hudson Strait July 22 after leaving Quebec July 14. Radio operators were landed at the Resolution Island direction finding station and the station of Cape Hopes Advance. At the western end of the strait, the hydrographic survey party was landed at Digges Island.

The north's newest harbor presents a scene of activity as dredges apply the finishing touches to water-front spring-clearing. Inside the big elevator, conveyor belts are adjusted to release 2,500,000 bushels of wheat stored for outgoing cargoes.

Everything is in readiness for the opening of navigation, officially set for August 10.

South Africa Prosperous

Business Reaches Almost Boom Proportions States Trade Commissioner

Vancouver.—South Africans are enjoying a period of prosperity almost reaching the proportions of a boom while most of the world is suffering from depression, David de Meyer, South African trade commissioner to Canada, said in addressing a service club.

He said millions of dollars of new wealth was created when the country went out of the gold standard and in 1934 South Africa increased her purchases from Canada from $5,700,000 to more than $12,000,000 and became the second largest purchaser of goods from Great Britain.

Post Office Has Birthday

British Postal System Was Started 300 Years Ago

London.—The British post office has celebrated its 300th birthday. It was July 31, 1635, that Charles I. gave Thomas Withering his mandate to organize a postal system.

In a message to G. C. Tryon, postmaster-general, King George said: "Every household is daily made aware of the efficiency of the post office work, which is carried out with punctuality and cheerfulness commanding the admiration and gratitude of the public."

The message was displayed in 23,000 post offices throughout the kingdom, the principal offices being gaily decorated.

Cheer King And Queen

Canadian Teachers In London Pay Visit To Palace Grounds

The serene atmosphere of the grounds of Buckingham Palace was shattered by three ringing cheers for the King and Queen from a party of 220 Canadian school teachers and school children, visiting England under auspices of the Overseas Education League.

The party was in the grounds when the royal car approached from an inner quadrangle, carrying Their Majesties to Victoria station en route to the Cowes regatta. The King stopped the car and with the Queen chatted with Major and Mrs. F. Ney, in charge of the party, and some of the visitors.

Start Aerial Survey

Dr. Charles Camsell Leads Party In Northern Trip

Prince Rupert, B.C.—A 10,000-mile aerial survey of northern Canada began July 30 when a party led by Dr. Charles Camsell, deputy minister of mines for Canada, hopped off at 2 p.m. for Wrangell, Alaska, in a seaplane piloted by C. H. "Punch" Dickens.

A. D. McLean, superintendent of Canadian Airways, and W. H. Sutherland, photographer, are other members of the party.

Dr. Camsell plans to take aerial photographs of 30,000 square miles of unmapped territory in the south-eastern Yukon, north of the Liard river. Geographers believe the Liard Mountains come to an end in that vicinity and the Mackenzie ranges, which lie to the east, may be a separate mountain system.

The "tropical" valleys of Indian legend lie in the region to be explored. If possible, the party will land and investigate these valleys. The survey will be concluded about August 15 at Edmonton.

Garnet Wheat Price Set

Separate Grading Went Into Effect On August First

Winnipeg.—The approximate market value of Garnet wheat as a separately-graded wheat was established July 31 by the cash closing committee of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

No. 1 Garnet was quoted at 29¢, three cents a bushel under No. 2 Northern, and No. 2 Garnet at 77¢, cents, the same price as No. 3 Northern.

Previously, Garnet wheat has been graded with No. 2 Northern, but starting with the new crop year Aug. 1, it will be kept separate from the Northern wheats and graded separately into two grades. Any Garnet unit for the two specified grades will automatically grade No. 3 Northern or lower.

Insurance Commission Announces Scheme Ready For Approval

Program Worked Out

Delegates Striving To Avert War In East Africa

Geneva.—Italo-Ethiopian peace struggled in stormy waters of formulas, methods of approach, deadlocks and rays of optimism, but an agreement appeared to be in sight.

The British, French, and Italian delegates agreed upon possible ways to keep peace in East Africa. Only Benito Mussolini's final approval of the draft plan was needed.

The tentative program was worked out at two conferences Baron Pompeo Abai of Italy, Anthony Eden of Great Britain and Premier Laval of France held.

Laval explained the tentative peace formula to Ethiopia's representatives. It was understood they had no real objections to it.

The dispute itself, for the time being, is set aside. Yet the difficulties over procedure are minor compared with the difficulties which lie ahead of a peaceful settlement of the dispute.

Both Italy and Ethiopia are moving up their troops. The wet season is nearing its end.

Addis Ababa.—Ethiopian fighting men, convinced war with Italy was almost at hand, besieged hastily created recruiting stations under Emperor Haile Selassie and his tribal chieftains ended their secret two-day council.

Denied the right to bear arms, women met in the Palace hall, formed "The Association for the Defence of the Country," started raising funds and subscribed $30,000 within an hour.

Bill Passes Through House

Will Give India Modified Self-Government When Made Law

London.—The government's India bill has completed its long passage through parliament.

The House of Commons agreed to more than 300 amendments made by the house of lords and the bill, providing India with modified self-government, was ready to be enacted into law.

It provides for a federation of Indian native and British united states, each with its own autonomous legislature.

The Indian government itself will have more independence than any other previous government at Delhi. The bill, however, maintains certain safeguards, with Britain controlling foreign policy and defence.

Cut Storage Costs

Pools Have Cut Costs On Grain In Elevators

Winnipeg.—Voluntary reduction of storage charges on grain in pool elevators, effective immediately, was announced here by the Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta wheat pools.

Storage charges dating from Aug. 1 will be 1-45 of a cent a bushel daily, applying to both country and terminal elevators. The previous rate was 1-30 of a cent a bushel a day.

The announcement said the step was taken as a temporary measure to reduce the costs grain growers bear in carrying their grain.

Ottawa.—General plans for the organization of Canada's first employment insurance system have been almost completed by the newly appointed employment and social insurance commission, Col. Gordon Harrington, chairman, stated. With his fellow commissioners, Tom Moore and A. R. Beaudet, Mr. Harrington outlined the scope of the work to a group of newspapermen.

In a short time the plans will be submitted to the government for approval, he said, but he could make no prediction of the date at which the insurance plan would begin to operate.

Since the commission began meeting it had received literally thousands of applications for positions, said Col. Harrington. All these were turned over to the civil service commission.

One of the first tasks of the commission will be to make a survey of all unemployed in Canada. The commission was also authorized to look into health insurance.

The scheme contemplated the creation of a fund by compulsory contributions from which benefits would be paid to those who became unemployed after making the requisite number of contributions. The worker contributed 2-5 of the fund, the employer 2-5, and the government 1-5. The government bore all operating expenses. Under this arrangement the benefits accruing to the insured worker in relation to his contribution would be about five times as great as under a private insurance system.

The scheme will cover all workers in industries having year-round operations or reasonable permanency of employment. It will apply to employees in stores and shops and to office workers in banks and financial institutions. Farming, domestic service, and such seasonal operations as fishing and logging camp work are among the exceptions.

In connection with the scheme the commission will have to operate labor exchanges throughout the country. Co-operation of the provincial governments which now operate employment service bureaux will be sought in order to avoid duplication of effort.

Chinese Eat Unripe Grain

Endeavor To Stave Off Starvation Until Help Arrives

Chungsiang, Hupeh.—Flood survivors, swarming like locusts on the uplands behind this stricken city, devoured unripe grain to save themselves from starvation.

Relief from Hankow was 300 miles away and coming slowly.

The emaciated, ragged survivors, sometimes in bands 1,000 strong, worked away gradually from Chungsiang where the dead seem to lie everywhere, the bodies of men, women and children mingled with those of animals.

The Han river, which brought unprecedented disaster to valley dwellers when it rose 20 feet in a few hours during the night of July 7 was still flooding the territory.

Deprived of food or hope of food, until relief arrives, the starving hordes in the uplands stopped to eat wherever they could find food. They did not plunder or steal. They announced to inhabitants of villages they entered: "We come to eat."

Proposed Flight Over North Pole May Open Up Commercial Route

Moscow.—Air travellers between North America and Russia may fly squarely over the North Pole two or three years hence, Soviet officials predicted, if success crowned Sigmund Levanevsky's proposed non-stop Moscow-to-San Francisco flight.

The trail Levanevsky's single-motor, radio-equipped ship will blaze through the polar regions may be the commercial route of the future, Otto Schmidt, head of the northern sea route department, declared.

Levanevsky, the Soviet's most famed flyer, was confident he and his companions could cross safely the polar barrens and down over northwest Canada to California, 6,000 miles away.

"We expect to reach San Francisco in three days and nights at the most," he said.

A permanent meteorological station located at the pole itself, is another Soviet project, Schmidt disclosed, this to be supplemented by stations on the ice at either side of the pole.

Schmidt said the Russians already had established 40 radio stations above the Arctic circle on islands and the coast which send regular weather reports to central stations at Cape Schmidt, Dixon Island and the cutter Sadko.

ELECTION NOTES OF INTEREST

A newcomer asked The Journal editor if he could explain the workings of Social Credit as expounded by Mr. Aberhart. We countered by asking him if he had made the same request from Social Credit advocates in this town. He replied in the affirmative, but stated that none could enlighten him, telling him he would have to hear Mr. Aberhart to have it explained.

Despite the fact that we have listened to Mr. Aberhart both over the radio and at public meetings, we admit that the plan appears unworkable. A few weeks ago an owner of a creamery wrote to Mr. Aberhart inquiring if he would be taxed more under Social Credit than at present. The reply over the radio was as follows: "You will not be taxed more; your business will be increased, as we will be providing the people with increased purchasing power, and if you require a loan we will be able to make one to you without interest."

Here is a golden promise which few would likely accept. Apart from the basic dividend promise, loaning of money or just plain Social Credit, would entail expense in administration, which he must know from experience. Again, Mr. Aberhart states he would provide Social Credit based on the natural resources of the province. One of our most important natural resources is coal, yet every mine worker knows it does not mean money in his pocket till it is, on the mine car, and even then its price as a commodity is not controlled by the miner or the operator, but by outside competitive forces. If Alberta mine owners could control the price of their output undoubtedly they would be asking a more remunerative figure and miners would receive higher wages. Mr. Aberhart would indeed work a miracle if he could change such a condition. His promises exceed those of the most astute or reckless politicians the west has known.

Harvey Murphy, Communism's most aggressive exponent in the Crows Nest Pass for over three years, has modified his attitude to the extent of making himself the "Labor" candidate, but without the official backing of the Labor party. By so doing he probably calculates it sounds less offensive to the majority of the Labor vote. But he cannot eradicate his record of disruption in the various centres which have suffered from his policies. For legislators men are needed who will promote the standing of Labor.

It is well known that it has been the aim of Communist agents to "bore from within." Examine the record. The Mine Workers' Union of Canada was functioning as a fairly solid unit in Alberta until Communist-nominated candidates secured control of the various locals in the adjacent towns including Coleman. Not content with endeavoring to control the locals, efforts were made to secure control of town councils and school boards, and with some degree of success; to wit, in Blairmore.

In Coleman there were a sufficient number of men loyal to the Labor cause to oust from office the Communists who had secured control of the union, and it required a stiff fight on the part of the Citizens' League to prevent them from capturing the mayoralty. The Journal, for a considerable time before it came to a showdown culminating in a free fight in the old Opera house, warned the masses of the workers against the wrecking propensities of the Murphy-led organization. The most recent debacle of his activities is the closing of the mines at Corbin.

The public has a short memory. By clothing himself with a mantle of semi-righteousness in posing as a Labor candidate, it may help to push into the background his real colors as an ardent Communist, whose policy is to gain by revolution that which cannot be obtained in a constitutional manner. Murphy's misguided efforts have availed nothing for the mine workers; instead their union was ripped wide open, with the result that there is no solidarity. Voters should ponder over these things in casting their ballots on August 22.

FOR ECONOMICAL TRANSPORTATION

Murphy is sincere in the cause he advocates. He rightly believes the only things the workers get are what they fight for, hence militancy must ever be a foremost factor in the forces of Socialism versus Capitalism. But there is also a large section of public opinion which may become crushed between the two, and which will make itself heard. This has been instanced in cases where general strikes have been proclaimed and have failed, because they could not command the support of a majority of the general public. There is a danger of dictatorship of the proletariat as there is of capitalist dictatorship. Both are dangerous, and it is this danger democracy endeavors to avoid.

Murphy, as a working-class organizer, will acknowledge no other viewpoint than that it is his duty to make class war his strong basis of appeal for the support of the workers. There is no compromise.

"We resent most vigorously the use of the boycott by Aberhart Social Creditors at the instigation of Aberhart himself, as a weapon to silence all opposition."—Economic Safety League.

The Economic Safety League has retained as consultant Professor H. F. Angus, M.A., B.C.L., head of the department of economics at the University of British Columbia.

The voice of Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberals in the House of Commons, was heard splendidly over the radio on Friday evening last. He is a forceful speaker, and it was a pleasure to hear him, especially after hearing so many less talented radio speakers.

"When Aberhart rules money will vanish," states the Lethbridge Herald in dealing editorially with Social Credit.

A paper apologizing for not printing political propaganda as an excuse for not giving the public the news, is something of the nature of a creature without a spine—trying to be all things to all men.

There's one fellow who still believes that all work and no play makes a dullard, so when his bookseller sent him Shakespeare's works he returned the set saying that he ordered Shakespeare's plays.

Rocky Mountain Constituency

I very respectfully solicit your vote in the approaching election.

I shall give my wholehearted support to Mr. W. R. Howson, Leader of the Liberal party in Alberta in carrying out his policies, and particularly, when elected, I shall unceasingly work for:—

1. The extension of our markets for Alberta coal.
2. Improvement in both the living and working conditions of the miner.
3. The welfare of our young people in matters of education and vocational training.
4. A fairer and more equitable application of the provisions of The Workmen's Compensation Act.
5. The encouragement of tourist traffic to our parks and incomparable mountain scenery by the further improvement of our main highways.
6. Better market roads for our farmers throughout the Province.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Brown, of Spring Point, spent the week-end with their daughter, Mrs. T. Holstead, and were accompanied by Mrs. E. Holstead, of Macleod, mother of T. Holstead, of The Journal staff.

R. Shone, W. Balloch, C. Routhead, accompanied by W. Wright and Alex. Balloch of The Journal staff, are taking part in the provincial tennis championship matches in Calgary this week, motoring up on Sunday last.

Lieut.-Col. Barnes, returning last week from Sarcee Camp, stated the country is safe for another year, thereby relieving anxiety among those who were fearful that Canada would become embroiled in another war.

George Morgan and Ivor accompanied by T. Flynn and Alex. Devine, motored to Calgary on Monday. On their return they were accompanied by Miss Belle Flynn, of Mount Royal College staff, who will spend her vacation at her home here.

The mimeographed sheet disclosed some of the stuff coupled up with its own product this week. No wonder; it was all a lovely mess, both from a typographical, composition and grammatical standpoint. It was a wonder anyone would own it as a child of their brain. Cheap-jack stuff carries its own weight—nothing more.

Mr. Walter Dibble left on Thursday last for Moores Mills, New Brunswick, following receipt of two telegrams, the first informing him of the critical illness of his mother, Mrs. George O. Dibble, and a few hours later the second stating death had ensued. Two years ago she visited in Coleman, following the death of her husband, Dr. George O. Dibble. The only other surviving member of the family is Mr. George Dibble, of Winnipeg, who also went east to attend the funeral.

ON THE FLY

Ten little flies,
All in a line;
One got a swat
And then there were

Nine little flies
Grimly sedate;
Licking their chops—
Swat! There were

Eight little flies
Raising some more—
Swat! Swat! Swat! Swat!
Then there were

Four little flies
Colored green-blue;
Swat! (Ain't it easy?)
Then there were

Two little flies
Dodge the civilian—
And early next day
There were a million.

Coleman Junior Football-ers Have Good Record

Coleman junior football club played at Michel on Wednesday, July 31. Playing only ten players, Coleman led most of the way, Michel equalizing on an penalty kick to make the final score 1-1. Douglas Moores scored for Coleman.

Playing against Sentinel Relief Camp on Aug 2 the juniors won by a score of 2-0. Due to lack of players Hastings and Spillers played for the juniors. Goal-scorers were Rennie and Spillers.

The juniors are having great success, having won 8, drawn 1 and lost 2 of the games played this season.—R.S.

"OUR TOWN" TALK

We believe in our town, just as you do. We have had favorable things to say about its churches, business places, clubs, etc., and about its boys and girls.

However, we were reminded of another group by an item in the Linville (Alabama) Tribune which was recently brought to our attention. We believe you will enjoy its contents. The item stated that Mr. J. T. McMath celebrated his 83rd birthday with more than 160 members of his family. The editor quoted Psalm 90:10: "The days of our years are threescore and ten; Or even by strength fourscore years;" and then made the following comment: "We saw a man last Sunday who has passed the Psalmist's expectation; who contradicted his assertion that the extra years are but labor and sorrow. We were privileged to see Uncle Tommy McMath surrounded by his children, grandchildren and great grandchildren."

"We saw him feast with them and a large number of other relatives and a few close friends; we saw him rejoice with them, worship with them and heard him pray for them. We think we learned the secret of a long, useful and happy life. No man can talk to God like that who in his secret heart has not walked close to Him. No man can be loved like he is who has not greatly loved those who love him."

Eighty-three years old and starting his eighty-fourth joyously, happily, loved by his family and friends who testify that he has helped them along the way."

There are many older folks in Coleman who are loved and appreciated because they have invested life's energies and abilities and interests in other people and in their home town. Well can they say with the poet:

"Grow old along with me,
The best is yet to be,
The last of life,
For which the first was made."

A Wonderful Homing Pigeon

Here is the official record of the championship flight furnished by Coleman Homing Society:
Time liberated at Peace River, 5 a.m., July 27
Bird clocked in Coleman 9-10-50 a.m., July 28.
Total elapsed time, 28 hours, 10 mins., 50 seconds.
Deducting seven hours darkness, actual flying time 21 hours, 5 minutes, 8 seconds, for distance of 471 miles air line. Velocity, 655.6 yards per min.
Runners-up were birds owned by J. Vysheid, of Bellevue, 624.2 yards per minute; E. Litherland, Bellevue, 558.6 yards per minute; A. Berger, Coleman, 557.5 yards per minute.
Fred Beddington, secretary of the local club, handed in results of several events of the summer months, but space and time made it impossible to publish same in this week's issue. Consequently they are held over.

I respectfully SOLICIT YOUR VOTE AND INFLUENCE. If elected I shall continue, as in the past five years, to work for:—

1. A greater measure of consideration of the injured workmen by the Compensation Board.
2. A more equitable distribution of Compensation by the Board.
3. The completion and hard surfacing of the Calgary-Banff Highway, and oiling of the other main highways, thus eliminating the dust nuisance and encouraging an increase in tourist traffic.
4. The application of the provisions of the "Health Insurance Act" to all parts of the province, where necessary, as quickly as possible.
5. A program of "WORK AND WAGES" for the Unemployed, both in and out of the Government camps.
6. The extension of the market for Alberta coal to all points in Eastern Canada as far as Toronto.

he had promised to blast his way into foreign markets, and in 1930, in spite of the Communist party's campaign, the people listened to him. He had smashed unions and enforced Section 98. Now roads were being built the same way as the Romans did, by slave labor. What fools we were to listen to Bennett! There was just as much back of Aberhart as Bennett; they were both out to maintain private ownership. Again Aberhart tries to swing to another renegade of Bennett's, Harry Stevens. Good Conservatives and Liberals, what had they to offer? When he (Murphy) came to the floor of the house he would move them give just as much as Aberhart, in fact more, as he had less to give.

All these promises belong to an election. Just look at the new savours who come out like the rain brings out the mushrooms. Whoever heard of Duke, MacNeil or Cruickshank, except in this election? What had Coleman to boast of? Two men from Maple Leaf came here to work, and found it so tough they were glad to go back. Why are Drumheller miners getting 13 per cent less than here? The answer—because they haven't a militant union. At Michel in eighteen months the Mine Workers' Union of Canada had developed far better working conditions. Bridge River miners got a dollar a day increase through militant action. The workers win by militant action that which is not won by siren promises.

He referred to J. E. Gillis, Liberal speaker, as he company's lawyer at Blairmore, and MacNeil as a nice boy whom George Kellock had picked up as a Liberal candidate. But where was MacNeil when 75 men were discriminated against? Cruickshank couldn't face an audience of workers. Instead, he had fought to prevent foreign-born taxpayers from being granted the franchise, to vote on school laws.

The record of the workers' council at Blairmore showed better administration than any previous council, and better relief rates, yet it wasn't a prosperity town like Coleman. They had shower baths and a public nurse, small things maybe, but showing they were considering the workers. The workers of the world should unite. The Communists got into trouble, not on account of themselves, but because they fought for the rights of the workers. Pattullo in British Columbia cried Work and Wages, but the workers didn't get either. Bennett swung Section 98 against the camp workers. Social Credit is ignorant or else is out to merely trick the people. Robert Horne had Aberhart wiped off the map at the Bellevue meeting with his questions. Tom Mann in England had been jailed under a law dating from the time of Edward the Confessor, they had to go that far back to find a reason for putting him in prison. Tim Buck was imprisoned in Canada because he opposed the government. There had been more blood spilt by Wolfe and Montezuma than any militant action in Canada in behalf of the workers, far more than would be spilt in a proletarian revolution.

The people must choose between Socialism and Fascism. Holt, Beatty and Bennett controlled a large share of Canada's wealth, and the workers must be organized strong enough that they can take what is their right. Right in Rocky Mountain constituency can be seen the extremes of wealth and poverty. Visit the Band Springs hotel, where people lounge around paying $115 a day and a few miles away can be found men working on the highways for 20 cents a day. Can one party represent these people? The working class must be represented by people of its class. If the mines in this district were amalgamated, the Coleman miners would find where they got off. They would be at the mercy of the companies who employed them.

As a Labor member he would get into every closed camp in the province and see that wrongs were righted, and no law would stop him. If he didn't do his duty by the workers who elected him, he would willingly be subject to the recall.

A number of questions were asked at the close of his address, mainly on Social Credit, the meeting closing about 10 p.m. The speakers were accorded an attentive hearing, with only a few interruptions.

Notice To Water Users

Now that the season is here when water will have to be pumped into the system, thus entailing great expense, water users are urged not to waste water by allowing it to run indiscriminately on lawns. A reduction of 20 per cent. was put into force this month through economies effected in conservation of water. If conditions warrant a further reduction may be obtained.

If it is found that water is being willfully wasted by users of garden hoses, steps will be taken by the council to have that service discontinued.

Record of Publisher

Lord Atholstan Has Served Montreal Star For 66 Years

Lord Atholstan, publisher of the Montreal Star, the Montreal Standard, and influential in other Montreal publications, has attained to the venerable age of eighty-seven years, and is still in active service, giving all his thought to the welfare of his country, his city and his daily service as a commentator on public affairs. Seldom does he miss a day at his office, and never the day but his direction of his newspapers is quite apparent.

Of his eighty-seven years some sixty-six have been given to the Montreal Star, and that is a record which has never yet been attained by any other editor or publisher in Canada—sixty-six years of continuous service and of rulership of the leading and most influential paper in Quebec, possibly in all Canada, for the Weekly Star is a wonder in its way, going each week to a quarter million subscribers.

Lord Atholstan was born as Hugh Graham, in the little village of Atholstan, Huntingdon County, on July 5, 1848, but journeyed to Montreal, as did many other ambitious lads from the peninsula of Quebec Province. He started the Star, with the other papers in the metropolis were either a semimonthly or a poor stage-Sherbrooke Record.

Need Lots Of Sympathy

Editors Of Newspapers Do Not Have Easy Job

The Joys Of Motoring

Toronto Man Had Plenty Of Grief For One Day

Even Chief Draper never had any more trouble with parking and parkers than a well known man had the other day. . . . He spotted a space between a small sedan and a large coal truck, but despite clever manipulating, the space was a bit too small.

Climbing out, he stepped back to the sedan, only to find it locked, and unobtainable. . . . then he approached the truck, hoisted himself up to the driver's seat, released what he thought was the emergency brake . . . and dumped five tons of coal on Yonge street.

Of course, you think the tale ends here . . . but our man has had more bad luck, and this, cross our heart, is a true story. . . . He casually tossed a cigarette out the car window and some time afterwards smelled smoke.

Looking about, he discovered that the lighted cigarette had gone into the back seat instead of on the road, and that said back seat was now on fire. . . . Keeping his presence of mind, he stopped the car, lifted the entire back seat out, and threw it over the fence into the ditch. And while he was contemplating himself on getting out of that nasty situation nicely, he heard shouts . . . and turned around to find that he had set fire to a hay field, which, before the volunteers had it quelled had burned two acres of hay—Toronto Telegram.

The Rubber Industry

Production Has Shown Astonishing Growth In Present Century

Rubber as an industry has had a most phenomenal growth and is one of the highlights of twentieth century civilization. At the beginning of the present century, production amounted to four tons a year; in 1934 it had reached approximately 1,000,000 tons. One of the chief rubber producing centres is British Malaya which produced 465,785 tons of rubber last year, or about half the total world's supply, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. The improvement which has taken place in world trade is reflected in the value of the rubber exports from British Malaya for the first ten months of 1934, which increased to $229,640,000 from $122,500,000 for the same period the year previous, or 87.4 per cent. At the beginning of last year, British Malaya had 3,355,000 acres of land under rubber. A great deal of it also comes from British Malaya. Imports into British Malaya from Canada show an increase of 30 per cent. 1934 over 1933, principally in motor cars, dried fish, canned milk, canned vegetables, wheat flour, timber.

Dalai Lama Chosen

Search Lasted Eighteen Months Before Found Right Baby Found

It has taken eighteen months for the Grand Lamas to find the right successor to the late Dalai Lama, in whose office the Snowy Kingdom combined that of Emperor and Pope. The chosen successor must be a Tibetan baby, born at the same moment that the Dalai Lama died, and into whose body the august ruler's soul has passed. A commission of seven priests searches for this baby, and on this occasion found twenty, from whom six were chosen by the Grand Lamas for final selection before the praying-wheel and image of Buddha in the Lhasa palace. After being anointed with sacred butter, and bathed in water from the Ganges, the new infant Dalai Lama, guarded by soldiers, is escorted to his high station, but is re-commissioned with material wealth. She is taken before her departer to the palace treasure chamber, and may carry away as much gold and gems as she can gather in both arms. Tibet is a plateau, three times as big as France, almost as cold as Siberia, and most of it higher than Mont Blanc.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

EMERGENCY SPECIAL

1 1/2 lb. round steak
3/4 cup dry bread crumbs
1 egg well beaten
1 teaspoon onion juice
1/2 teaspoon salt
Pepper
Milk to moisten

Put round steak or some other cut of beef through the meat chopper four or five times. Add other ingredients and mix very thoroughly. Add milk to make the right consistency to mold into small cakes about 1/2 inch thick. Fry in hot fat until well browned. (Bacon or ham gives a good flavor.) Remove the meat cakes and make a gravy by adding four to five fat remaining in the pan and stir until the flour is well browned. Use enough flour to make a cream sauce of medium consistency (1 cup milk, 2 tablespoons flour). Add milk until desired consistency. Return browned meat cakes to cream sauce and finish cooking cakes over a low fire. This serves about eight persons.

DRIED APRICOT AND PINE-APPLE JAM

4 cups (2 lbs.) prepared fruit
7 cups (3 lbs.) sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin
To prepare fruit, add 2 cups water to 1/4 pound apricots. Cover and let stand 4 hours, or overnight. Drain fruit, grind or chop fine, and mix with juice. Crush well or grind in medium, fully ripe pineapple or use 1 No. 2 can crushed pineapple. Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, filling up the last cup with water if necessary. Mix well and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir continually before and while boiling. Boil hard 1 hour. Then remove kettle from fire and stir in bottled fruit pectin. Skim; pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 11 glasses (8 fluid ounces each).

Fortune Plays Strange Tricks

Fortune has played queer tricks on some of the prize winners in the Jubilee "dip" of Calcutta, India. A completely bald business man has drawn a ticket entitling him to a free permanent wave, and a poverty-stricken coolie has won a cocktail shaker. An Indian coolie's prize was a permit to dine with a friend, free of charge, at one of Calcutta's most palatial hotels.

Ends Long Canoe Voyage

Montreal Girl Makes Trip To New York Alone

"Fed up" with humanity, Ida Lyman, 22-year-old Montreal social worker, recently completed a 550-mile water trip from Montreal to New York in a 15-foot Eskimo kayak.

"This trip has been a good rest for me," she said, after she finished telling of the rigors of the voyage. Storms and rapids beat the route—via Lake Champlain—which was taken by the pioneers of 200 years ago.

She is the first person to make the trip single-handed, said Capt. Bill Byrne, president of the George Washington Boating Association, New York, at whose float she tied up.

Miss Lyman, a native of Denmark, and a naturalized Canadian, said the first leg of the trip was the hardest. "There's a lot of white water in the Richieu River between Montreal and Lake Champlain, and several days I had to buck storms," she said. Her cockleshell craft she built herself two years ago.

Miss Lyman returned to Montreal by airplane.

Knew Famous Nurse

Ontario Minister Was Once Engaged To Florence Nightingale

Among the interesting books and papers which have been presented to the University of Western Ontario, London, by Thomas Connor of Goderich is a collection dealing with Rev. John Smithurst, who died at Epsom, Ontario, in 1867, and who in his youth was engaged to Florence Nightingale, the famous nurse. Rev. John Smithurst was born in Derbyshire, England, and was a cousin of Florence Nightingale. In his youth they were engaged to be married, but as he was an older man the families objected and the engagement was broken. Mr. Smithurst came to Canada as a missionary and his fiancée went on to reach great heights of fame as a nurse.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON AUGUST 11

DANIEL (Temperance and Health)

Golden text: Know ye not that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit which is in you, which ye have from God? I Corinthians 6:19. Lesson: Daniel, Chapter 1. Devotional reading: Psalm 46.

Explanations And Comments

King Nebuchadnezzar's Plan for Daniel and Three Companions, Daniel 1. It was in the third year of Jeconiah's reign (605 B.C.) that Nebuchadnezzar, King of Babylon, first besieged Jerusalem and carried back to Babylon Jewish captives, together with some of the treasures of the temple. Among the captives were Daniel and the other youths of our lesson. The king had directed one of his officers to take Jewish youths of noble families who were especially fair and bright and have them enter what has been called "The Prince's College of Babylon." For three years they were to receive education for the civil service. They were to be taught the language and learning of the Chaldeans. They were to be nourished with portions of the food and wine served to the king himself.

Wise Experiment, Daniel 1:13. Daniel firmly resolved that he would not live upon the king's dainties and wine, for he knew they were not good for him. Moreover, he thought of them as defiling, for the "dainties" might have been offered in sacrifice to idols, or might not have been prepared according to Jewish laws, or might be the flesh of animals held to be unclean by the Jews. See the law in Dt. 12:24; Lev. 11:4-20.

Daniel requested Ashpenaz, the officer in whose charge he was, to permit him and his three companions to refuse the food given. Though kindly disposed toward Daniel, the officer hesitated to grant his request. "Why should I use my power to compare your way with those of the other youths and notice that they are in poorer condition than they?" he questioned. "The king might think that I had enriched myself with what had been provided for you, and my life would be forfeited," he added.

Daniel had a plan which he knew would not get the officer into trouble and he proposed it. "Test us," he said, "let us eat pulse (herbs, Revised Version); vegetables, Moffatt's) and drink water for ten days, and then compare our faces with those of the youths who eat the king's dainties, and deal with us accordingly."

The Success of the Experiment, Daniel 1:14-16. Ashpenaz yielded to Daniel's suggestion without making any objections. At the end of the time suggested by Daniel the experiment had succeeded—the four youths were found to be fairer than those who ate the king's food, and they were put permanently on their simple diet.

Plain Living and High Thinking, Daniel 1:17-20. God gave the four young men, Daniel, Mishaal, Mishaal, and Azariah, knowledge and skill in all learning and wisdom. They were industrious students, but the gift of wisdom came from God, as do all good things. And Daniel had understanding in all visions and dreams. Chapter 2. When the youths were summoned to his presence, the king found these four Hebrews the best of them all, better than all the magicians and enchanters in his realm, and they were given positions which involved personal attendance upon him.

Town Crier Not Needed

Newspaper And Radio Have Killed Profession In England

The job of town crier of Cromer, England, does not pay and R. H. Laurence has resigned the post. The crier's average earnings during the summer season were only $3 a week. In the winter he earned practically nothing at all. Hence the office of town crier has become vacant and the gorgeous uniform has been folded away among the mothballs. The 200-year-old bell is silent.

In the summer there were entertainments and theatrical performances to advertise in the ancient manner of "crying" in the streets. Occasionally a visitor employed the crier to announce the loss of some article. For a modest fee Laurence donned his uniform, packed his bell under his arm and worked his way right through the town, stopping at every important corner to cry his news.

Town crying as a profession in England is falling away. Newspapers and the radio have crimped their style.

Paper was made in Egypt centuries ago but to-day there is only one paper mill, located at Alexandria, and it produces cardboard for making cigarette boxes for which there is a great demand. Waste paper and rags obtained locally are used in the manufacture of this cardboard.

Little Journeys In Science

ALKALIS

(By Gordon H. Gues, M.A.)

The term alkali is of Arabic origin and is used to designate certain substances like lye, washing soda, and ammonia solution which are capable of neutralizing acids. Alkaline substances possess properties in many ways just the opposite of those of acids. A carefully balanced mixture of an alkali with an acid is generally neutral, being neither acid nor alkaline. A person who has swallowed an acid will be given a dose of an alkaline substance such as washing soda, which in kitchen science is sodium carbonate, or even plaster scraped from a wall.

Alkalis when dissolved in water have the property of turning red litmus, a dye extracted from certain lichens, blue. A substance which changes its color upon addition of an acid or alkali, is known by scientists as an indicator.

The most common alkalis are sodium hydroxide, known as caustic soda, potassium hydroxide of caustic potash, calcium hydroxide or slaked lime, and ammonium hydroxide or ammonia water. In science the term base is also used to designate

Sodium hydroxide is a white solid compound, which may be prepared in the form of ionic sticks. It is very soluble in water, the solution is usually called lye. This solution has a caustic taste and a slippery feeling on the skin, which is due to the large scale in the manufacture of hard soap. This is done by heating certain fats or oils, such as palm-oil and coconut-oil, with the alkali.

Dissolution of this base is also used to remove skins from fruits, such as the peach, and in the process of ripening the fruit into a boiling solution for a short time. When a piece of pure woolen cloth is boiled in a 10 per cent. solution of lye, the material dissolves completely. Cotton, however, is insoluble and hence sodium hydroxide is used in the manufacture of cotton or other vegetable fibres.

Potassium hydroxide, known commercially as caustic potash, is very similar to sodium hydroxide, but is more expensive.

Calcium hydroxide or slaked lime is used on a large scale in mortar. It is also used for whitewash and in preparing lime-water. In the laboratory lime-water for ten days, and then compare our faces with those of the youths who ate the king's dainties, and deal with us accordingly. The Success of the Experiment, Daniel 1:14-16. Ashpenaz yielded to Daniel's suggestion without making any objections. At the end of the time suggested by Daniel the experiment had succeeded—the four youths were found to be fairer than those who ate the king's food, and they were put permanently on their simple diet.

Blind Are Good Swimmers

Show Amazing Coolness When Diving From Springboard

Blind girls use their toes instead of their eyes, as was demonstrated to Viscountess Hampton at the opening of the new swimming pool at Chorleywood college, Hertford, Eng., where blind girls are being trained. The pool is a circular one, surrounded the edge and the springboard is fitted with a double thickness of matting at its end. Using their toes as guides instead of their eyes, the girls plunge in with easy grace.

An official of the National Institute of the Blind, "Swimming is one of the exercises that the blind enjoy with the confidence of sighted people and the coolness with which some of the blind girls at Chorleywood leap off a six-foot diving board is amazing."

The college is for those who are totally blind or whose sight is so poor that they are not read more than one or two books in a year.

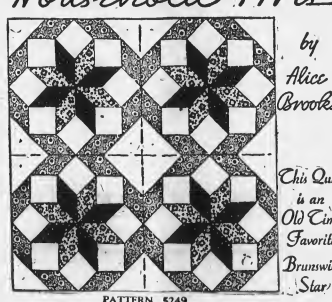

China Lends Treasures

Chinese art treasures worth millions of dollars rest under heavy armed police guard in the basement of Burlington House, headquarters of the Royal Academy, London, after being rescued from the cruelties of the Japanese. The treasures will remain under guard until the Fall, when they are to appear in a special exposition. They were loaned by the Chinese Government.

Household Arts

"Twinkle, twinkle little stars," and they're really not so very far, for this is the kind you can capture and anchor securely to earth by means of a beautiful patchwork quilt. The "Brunswick Star" with its eight clearly defined points, bordered by eight contrasting diamond patches, has all the delicacy of a snow crystal, yet is surprisingly easy to piece, and make a decorative repeat on an all-over quilt. Only four materials are needed for it, and to simplify matters, there are only three pattern pieces. This quilt is an old colonial favorite.

In pattern 5249 you will find the Block Chart, an illustration for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson in a sub-deb, a gay, irresponsible girl of nineteen, with no care beyond the choice of her costume for her coming-out party. Suddenly, in the market crash, her indulgent father loses all he has and his family is faced with the necessity of a simpler method of living. At this juncture a letter is received from an eccentric relative in Colorado, who offers the girl a home on what seems to be impossible conditions.

After much consideration Cousin Columbine's offer is accepted, and Nancy and Jack arrive at Pine Ridge. They are met at the railway station by Columbine Nelson, who in turn introduces Mattie, her sister, and Adams, two neighbors of Aunt Columbine, and the party set out for Pine Ridge, which village caused the name to both Nancy and Jack because of its dilapidated appearance and general look of poverty. Nancy and Jack are shown to the rooms they are to occupy, and both the young people consider the furniture and decorations hateful and contrasting the present quarters with their luxurious home in Boston, wonder if they can endure the change for an length of time. Aunt Columbine tells why she wrote the letter to them, and relates some of her early experiences at Pine Ridge of hostile Indians and forest fires, of her father's hunt for gold, and of her mother's splendid spirit, and finally body, which could not endure the strain of pioneer life.

Nancy set out one afternoon to climb to the top of a hill so as to obtain a view of the surrounding landscape and the path which Adams had told her to follow. A truck came along the road, driven by Matthew Adams, and she asks him which way to go. They ascended the hill, and then on to the top of Cousin Columbine's. There Mark Adams tells Nancy that her brother Luke has broken his leg, and that Jack Nelson has been hired to help out with Luke's leg gets better.

No Go On With The Story

CHAPTER XI.

It was after Mark Adams had continued on his way, fortified by a substantial dinner and armed with a pumpkin pie and Aurora's "compliments" for Jack, that Nancy carried a glass of warm milk into Cousin Columbine's bedroom, and asked if there were anything she could do for the invalid.

"You can sit down and let me look at you," responded the old lady. "I've got the upper hand of this cold already, and am staying there only because I believe in 'safety first.' Every hour wasted by sickness makes me impatient. There's so much to do in this wonderful old world; and when you're over seventy there's such a little time to do it in. Aurora tells me Jack's getting on all right—not that I expected anything else. He's got the Nelson grip, and there's no chance that he'll be imposed on at the Adam ranch. Eve would see to that even if John Adam wasn't the kindest soul alive. Some of the boys were too easy going when the boys were youngsters, but—look at the work of 'em!"

"Well, you'll see them all in good time, unless you get desperate and run away from me. I love Pine Ridge even in a blizzard; but I can see how it looks like the end of no-where to a girl brought up as you've been. I was glad Mark Adams happened in at dinner time to keep you company. Has Aurora Tubbs been talking you to death?"

Nancy laughed.

"Not quite. I let her rattle on and killed time listening."

"Filled time!" echoed Cousin Columbine. "Don't ever use that phrase again, child. Life's too short at the best, and even a day like this there are things to do. Everything's made too easy for people now-a-days. That's half the trouble with 'em. I was younger than you, my dear, when Father took me to Leadville. More than fifty years ago, yet I can shut my eyes and it seems like yesterday."

"Was it much of a place at that time?" questioned Nancy as Cousin Columbine slipped her milk.

"Much of a place! I wish I could make you see it. An entire place had come down to make room for the town, Nancy; and new-hatched stumps of spruces were still standing in the streets—if they could be called streets. The houses were nothing but shacks or hastily made log cabins. Our own was set up on a stove pipe for a chimney. The family next us used old flower pots for the purpose. Some of the shacks had only cays for roofs; and others—if you'll believe me!—no roofs at all. There were even shanties half buried in the earth, while some, set up on posts. Folks were living in tents and wigwags, too—and now we shiver at a cold entry! Yes, life's too soft."

Nancy laughed as she hitched her chair nearer to the stove, and questioned: "Were there any shops, or did you get provisions from a distance?"

"There were stores of a sort, even at that time. I clearly remember the street where business was carried on. There were always groups of excited miners, with eager, sometimes desperate faces, standing in the middle of it, arguing and gesticulating—men of all sorts and kinds, my dear. The good and the vicious with one thing in common: the lure of silver. Gambling houses were open all night, and so were theatres."

"I remember," gasped Nancy. "In a place like that?"

Cousin Columbine nodded. "Not at the very first, of course; but less than a year after the boom started, saw mills got to work, and in dwelling places grew more comfortable. Banks, and business blocks, and dance halls sprang up almost overnight; other places, too, which the town would have been happier without: saloons and gambling houses where many a hard-won fortune was thrown away."

"It doesn't sound like a very restful spot!" smiled Nancy.

Cousin Nelson laid down her empty glass and pulled the blanket a bit higher.

"A mining town in boom time," she asserted, "is about as restful as a horse's nest that has been disturbed. Along in the early nineties when there was a stampede to San Juan county and the town of Creede was founded, I saw two lines in a newspaper that I never forgot:

"It was day all day in the daytime, and there was no night in Creede."

"And it was the same at Leadville. Bedlam broke loose after the men stopped work, and it was almost impossible to sleep till daylight."

"Was that the last of the gold and silver rushes, Cousin Columbine?"

"Creede came later than Leadville, as I said; then Cripple Creek, not to mention the Pamperton hoax, my dear. Some day I'll tell you about that, but I mustn't bore you with too many tales at once. We grow gregarious as we grow old, I fear; and it's years since I've talked over those times with any one."

"But I'm not bored," Nancy assured her. "You'll have to tell this all over again when Jack is here. I wouldn't have him miss it for the world. Do you suppose we could see one of those mining towns some day?"

"No reason in the world why you can't. Come spring we'll make an excursion to Cripple Creek. Even now it will give you an idea of how a mining town is built; and no doubt Mark Adams would jump at the chance to drive us over. Did he say how Luke was getting on?"

"He'll be home soon on crutches. Does Luke look like his brothers, Cousin Columbine?"

"Not in the least. He's the odd member of the family and resembles no one. Luke was a timid little boy and not quite so husky as the others. He's taking a year off before entering college."

"Aurora says he's his mother's favorite."

"Stuff and nonsense! If she felt any favoritism Eve Adam has too much sense to show it; but Luke's affectionate, and not ashamed to let folks find it out. I've thought at times that Eve had a leaning toward Matthew; but if that's true it's only because he's so shy she wants to protect him."

"How old is John?"

"Sixteen. Living with friends at the Springs and going to high school. He's headed for college in the East. He and Mark are as alike as two peas in looks; but John's more quiet and studious like his father. Mark's the liveliest member of the family, but Eve has a right to be proud of him even if he has only a high school diploma in place of Mattie's A.B. He still hopes to study forestry when his father can spare him. Put a stick of wood in that stove, Nancy, and then I'll try to get a nap."

As Nancy obeyed she glanced at the bedside table on which lay a copy of the Atlantic Monthly almost a year old. This reminded her of Pine Ridge's lack of reading matter, and she asked: "How does it happen that there's no library here, Cousin Columbine? It's a pretty ample place, but doesn't anybody like to read?"

It was moment before the old lady responded; then she said: "I suppose most of the folks around here are too busy to read. There's a great deal of education, and no background whatever. The Adams, and Theodore Taylor, our postmaster, are the exceptions. The truth is, Nancy, any youngsters with ambition usually leave town, which is not to the advantage of Pine Ridge as a community. Then too, every one has work to do, and reading's regarded as a luxury. That's wrong, of course; but being a pioneer I can understand it."

"But they have time to look around the store," observed Nancy shrewdly. "And if they could get good books just by going to a library, perhaps they'd stop buying those awful magazines Juana takes on."

"Maybe they would," admitted Cousin Columbine, "but public libraries don't grow on bushes; and in a place like this there's no Aladdin to rub his wonderful lamp and wish for one!"

Nancy laughed as she went out, leaving Cousin Columbine to her nap. Aladdin! What would it be to Pine Ridge if she possessed his lamp? This idea, and the inspiration which was born of it an hour later, so absorbed the girl that any necessity for "killing time" was quite forgotten.

"What you've been doing this long afternoon?" questioned Aurora, poking her head into the tower room without ceremony. "Supper's been ready for ten minutes; but everything's so still 'round here I thought maybe you was sound asleep."

Nancy glanced up from the lengthy manuscript she was writing to her Aunt Louise. "You're right, Aurora. I think I've been asleep most of my life, but I'm waking up, thank goodness! Did you ever hear about Aladdin and his wonderful lamp?"

CHAPTER XII.

Nancy's letter to her Aunt Louise arrived on a Saturday, and she carried it out to Edgemore to read aloud. The young people had been gone more than a month, and as the strangeness of their absence wore away, life was settling down into its new routine, and Phil declared he never wanted to go back to the city.

There were times when his mother agreed with him. Despite financial worry, Margaret Nelson was conscious of a sense of restfulness which had been lost to her during the last few years. Fond as she was of her husband's sister, Louise's almost daily comments on the children often annoyed her; but now the week-end visit was something to look forward to. To-day she arrived on the train with her brother, and said before she had taken off her hat:

"I've a letter from Nancy. It's rather surprising on the whole. Shall I read it now?"

"Let's wait till I get supper on the table," suggested Margaret, with a glance at her husband's tired face. "Phil says he's famished, and no wonder! He's dug out every path along four o'clock. I don't know what I'd do without that boy, here in the country. He's a real worker."

"And in town there were no chores to occupy him," observed his aunt. "This move has been a splendid thing for Phil, Margaret. He looks and acts like a different boy. And I'm not sure but that the visit to Colorado has done something for Nancy, even if I did oppose it. Just wait till I drop my things and I'll help with supper. Those beans smell the way Boston baked beans ought to smell! I'll be down in a moment."

Watching his sister run lightly up the stairs, James Nelson wondered if the change in environment hadn't benefited her as well as Phil. Possibly Louise appreciated this taste of family life the better, because of her absence during the week. As she disappeared, he bent to kiss his wife for the second time since his arrival. It was Margaret comprehended, an effort on his part to make up for the lack of cheering news, and tactfully refrained from asking how the day had gone.

"This is wonderful brown bread," declared Louise when she assembled at supper. "In our days of affluence, Margaret, I'd completely forgotten that you could cook! I'll take two bites and then read the letter. Have you heard from Colorado yourself to-day?"

"A note from Jack. He says—" "It was addressed to me," broke in Phil impatiently. "He's learned to milk; and is riding horseback every day. He says those Adam people are awfully nice, and that Mr. Adam does a lot of cooking because his wife doesn't like to do it. He hasn't seen Nancy for more than a week, but one of the Adam boys was there to dinner—at Cousin Columbine's, I mean; and there's been a blizzard; and Cousin Columbine and Nancy are ranch cats they can't spare Jack; and Mr. Adam's going to cook the turkey all himself. I wish I could go to Colorado and get a job. Just feel my muscle."

Aunt Louise complied obligingly; and having satisfied her first hunger, opened the letter from Pine Ridge. "Read it all," said Dad. "We haven't heard for several days."

"No doubt Nancy counted on my bringing this out to-night. It should have reached me sooner. Those storms in the middle west delayed it, and she's in a hurry for an answer too. She says—

Sugar Treated With Liquid Air Makes High Explosive

Sponge cakes and lumps of sugar may serve as bombs in the near future, a gathering of scientists in London was told.

Professor W. B. Tuck of London University demonstrated the deadliness of these sweets before the scientists. He soaked a piece of sponge cake in liquid air which fared up violently when touched with a match.

"Treated with liquid air a piece of cake or a lump of sugar could be made of high explosives," said Professor Tuck.

Franco-British friendship was invoked by the Prince of Wales when he was welcomed at St. Peter Port, Guernsey, on his arrival aboard the destroyer Faulknor by Lieut.-Gov. E. N. Broadhead.

The prince declared himself happy to visit "this beautiful and fertile island both because of its long connection with the British Crown and its role as a connecting link with the great friendly nation on the other side of the English Channel."

Great Seal of England Has Caused Some Unhappy Moments

The custody of the Great Seal, which passed from Lord Sankey to Lord Halsbury, the new lord high chancellor, in the recent changes in the British government, has given some unhappy moments to sundry lord chancellors of the past.

More than once the symbol of authority has been stolen, and on one occasion it was not recovered. James II., when flying from Whitehall, threw the Great Seal into the Thames, whence a fisherman recovered it by chance many weeks later. When Lord Brougham was in Scotland the Great Seal was abstracted from his room by playful young ladies who, on beholding his extreme distress, set him to find it, by a game of "hot and cold," in the family tree-caddy.

In 1812, when Lord Eldon's house took fire, Eldon himself rushed out with the Great Seal and buried it in safety in a flower bed. In the excitement he forgot the hiding-place, and after the fire was extinguished the whole family had to set to and dig with sticks in the various beds until it was located.

Explorer Claims Discovery

Polish Count Believes He Has Found King Solomon's Mines

A claim to have identified Ophir, the mysterious country from which King Solomon procured gold for the temple of Jerusalem, is made by Count Byron de Prokork, the Polish explorer.

He says the Ophir of the Bible was the modern Werka Warka, in the unknown mountains of Western Abyssinia, which means "the valley of gold."

Count de Prokork found that mines which furnished gold for the tomb of the Kings of Egypt thousands of years before Christ are being worked to-day for local native rulers.

It was only with the greatest diffculty, and after the personal intervention of Lord Tyrrell, ex-British Ambassador in Paris, that he obtained permission from the Emperor of Abyssinia to visit Werka Warka, he declared.

Even then he and his party had to travel at night and were obliged to avoid capture. Near the spot he came on hundreds of slaves seeking gold. Nearby were stone pyramids, said to be tombs of slaves of the time of the Egyptian kings.

"Now tell the jury, lady," instructed the young lawyer, "just where the prisoner was milking the cow."

The young lady, a trifle embarrassed, smiled sweetly and replied, "Why, I think it was just a little back of the centre, sir."

Little Helps For This Week

Who hath depleted the day of small things? Zechariah 4:10.

Little things on little wings Bear little souls to heaven.

An occasional effort even of an ordinary holiness may accomplish great acts of sacrifice, or bear severe pressure of unwonted trial. But constant discipline in unnoticed ways, and the spirit's silent unselfishness becoming the hidden habit of life, give to it its saintly beauty, and this is the result of care and lowly love in little things. Perfection is attained more readily by this constancy of religious faithfulness in all minor details of life, consecrating the daily efforts of self-forgetting love.

Love's secret is to be always doing things for God, and not to mind because they are such very little ones.

Some Old Bank Notes

Found In Ancient Records And Dated 1770 And 1776

Two samples of paper currency, issued by British Colonies in America before they became American States, have just come to light at Cincinnati, Ohio. They are a Maryland note for six dollars, entitling the holder to receive "Bills of exchange payable in London with gold at par, at the rate of four shillings and sixpence for each dollar," dated 1770, and a New Jersey bill, issued in 1776, for twelve shillings. Both bear the warning: "To counterfeit is death." The bills were found in a bundle of old records in the Cincinnati Board of Education Library. How they got there is a mystery, since at the time they were issued Cincinnati was not even a trading station and few white men had penetrated into that part of the Red Indians' territory.

Use Skyscraper Mast

Tower Being Built In Moscow To Train Parachute Jumpers

Partly for military training, partly for sport, the Soviet Union is building in Moscow a steel tower some 350 feet high, from which parachute jumpers may be trained.

The tower, in pentagonal shape, will have five platforms from which parachute students may jump. To simulate the experience of making an actual leap from a plane, the platforms will be made in the form of an aeroplane cabin.

An elevator placed in the centre of the tower will carry jumpers to the platforms. The tower also will serve as a beacon for aeroplanes and a mooring mast for dirigibles. Its lights will be visible for 18 miles.

Visit your friends at Hillcrest on Saturday and Monday evenings, when the carnival of the Hillcrest Miners Literary and Athletic Association will be the big drawing card. Read their display advt. in this paper and make up your mind to join in the fun. The proceeds are for a worthy cause, in aid of the children's annual picnic.
